

Why can't I find Add/Remove programs in Windows Vista?

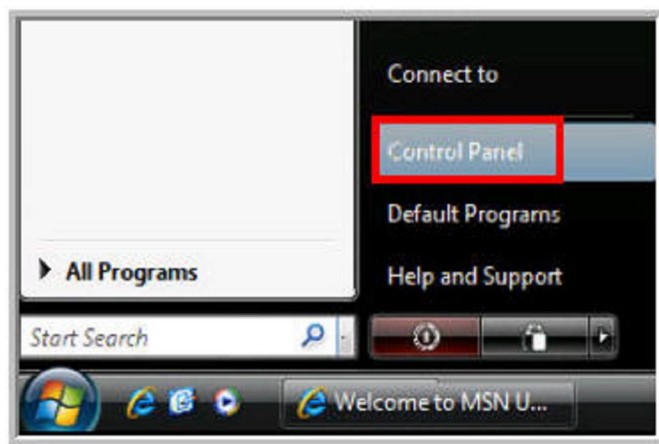

Add/remove programs in Windows Vista is still there - it's only that it has undergone a name change :)

If you are using the Vista for the first time or trying to uninstall and reinstall some program in your Windows Vista, you might scratch your head searching for the 'Add/Remove programs' in your control panel.

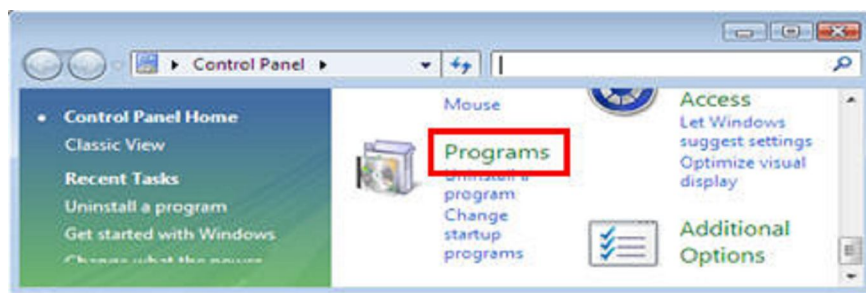

Do not panic!!! It is there, it's just that the name has been changed. It is now known as 'Programs and Features' in lieu of Add/Remove programs.

Follow the following steps to get to Programs and Features.

- Click on the Start button.
- Now go to Control Panel.

- You will find Programs there. Please click on that.

- Now click on Program and Features.

You can look for the program you want to work with and then click on Uninstall/Change button
